

SOCIOMETRY WEEKEND

This 3-day Weekend is designed to help participants identify the underlying structure of a group, family or individual, using the techniques of sociometry and psychodrama, and help shift it in a positive way that allows clients to feel safe and connected enough to take more risks.

We will specifically look at the timing of clinical interventions, and participants will learn techniques to help address issues of isolation, cliques, transferences, and stuck energy in the group, family or in the self. Participants will leave the workshop with a strong set of skills to address interpersonal dynamics that they can bring directly back to their clinical work.
(No prior sociometry or psychodrama experience necessary to attend.)
